Pagliatura comes from the Italian word for "straw" and as the name suggests, the wine boasts a pretty golden hay color. The nose is weighed down by waxy smells that range from scented candle to honeycomb and there are also some mineral shadings at the back. The mouthfeel is waxy and fat.

Bright yellow. Displays more ripe fruitiness on the nose than recent vintages, hinting at stone fruits, pineapple and mint. Gives a sweet impression on entry, then turns fleshy and soft, showing considerable verve and lift thanks to bright acids. I like its flavors of ripe pear and peach complicated by citrus and floral notes, but this very fruit-forward style of vermentino may confuse those who prefer a more herbal, mineral-accented version. This tasty, tactile wine will offer great short-term drinking.

88 points

WINE ADVOCATE - ROBERT PARKER

Juicy ripe pears, melon, flowers and smokiness are some of the nuances that flow from the 2009 Vermentino della Maremma Toscana Pagliatura. This is a fairly rich, textured style of Vermentino built on a core of expressive, generous fruit as opposed to the simpler, more fragrant versions that are typical of this grape. Accordingly, the Pagliatura is best paired with richer foods and should work nicely with dishes that contain spice and/or heat. Anticipated maturity: 2010-2012.

Bright straw-yellow. Aromas of nectarine, spring flowers and orange zest. Juicy and fruit-driven, with good intensity and purity to the stone and citrus fruit flavors. In a fresh, clean style, but Pagliatura, which is generally one of the best vermentinos of the Tuscan Coast, usually has a bit more concentration and length.

The 2007 Sinarra is another fabulous wine from Fattoria di Magliano. Here the fruit is darker and more vibrant, while the wine possesses remarkable clarity. The density of the fruit carries through to the long, round finish. Everything is in the right place in this gorgeous red.

Dark red. Raspberry, cassis, dusty herbs and menthol on the nose. Nicely sweet, firm and juicy, with good shape and energy to the flavors of dark berries, underbrush and candied licorice. Finishes with broad, fine-grained tannins, considerable sweetness (a bit of residual sugar, perhaps?) and a strong peppery element.

The 2015 Altizi is a rare pure Cabernet Franc. Powerful and a bit burly, the 2015 nevertheless has good depth and plenty of structure, not to mention a good deal of varietal character. Some angular contours remain, but hopefully those will soften over time, as the Altizi is intriguing. Sweet tobacco, cedar, mint and dried rose petal struggle to emerge, their intensity somewhat attenuated by tannins that are a touch coarse. Hopefully time in bottle will help.

FALSTAFF

Sattes, undurchdringliches Rubinviolett. Kompakte, dichte Nase, eröffnet mit leicht erdigen Noten, viel Tabak und Lakritze, dann viel dunkelbeerige Frucht, einladend. Im Ansatz satte, reife Beerenfrucht, entfaltet sich mit dichtem, im Kern geschmeidigem Tannin, schöner süßer Schmelz, baut sich lange auf, beschreibt einen weiten Bogen, im Finale fester Druck.

Dark ruby red core. Ripe nose of dark berries, cassis and mint. The palate has good density of fruit, dark berry notes a fine herbal spiciness, rich in tannin and extract, good potential for ageing, long and fresh finish, well built. AND Dark purple red colour with violet hue and black centre. Opulent and well concentrated nose, ripe figs and plums, black cherries, prunes and hints of chocolate in the background. Elegant spiciness. On the palate well structured with firm but mature tannins, excellent fruit and convincing length.

The 2011 Poggio Bestiale is quite beautiful in this vintage. Smoke, grilled herbs, tobacco and incense add dimensions of flavor and texture to the dark fruit in a rich, resonant wine loaded with nuance. The 2011 is quite intense, yet retains terrific balance while avoiding excess heaviness. Slightly green, herbal notes appear on the finish, but those notes are nearly buried by the fruit.

WINE ADVOCATE - ROBERT PARKER

The 2011 Poggio Bestiale is an opulent and rich Tuscan red with bursting intensity and a beautiful presentation of a very warm vintage. The wine oozes forth aromas of dried blackberry, Morello cherry, sweet baking spice, leather, chewing tobacco and grilled herb. It is the quintessential Tuscan red. In the case of this vintage, however, you can feel the summer heat in the almost-overripe fruit aromas that lift from the bouquet. The jury is out on how far the wine's future evolution will take it.

VINOUS - ANTONIO GALLONI

A dark, sumptuous wine, the 2012 Poggio Bestiale offers tons of depth in a forward, voluptuous style that is best enjoyed on the young side, while the flavors remain bright. Mint, lavender and sweet spices add nuance throughout. The 2012 is an attractive wine, although it does not appear to have the delineation, energy or intensity of the very best years.

A fresh, clean red with strawberry, cherry and lemon-rind aromas and flavors. Medium to full body, firm tannins and a crisp finish. Lots of bright acidity gives this backbone. Better in 2016.

The 2012 Maremma Toscana Poggio Bestiale offers pretty layers of plushness and richness with pristine fruit on prime display. This is a very balanced red wine that offers a pure and smooth drinking experience. You can't go wrong with a Tuscan red like this, especially if you are cooking up a pasta meal with friends and family.

FALSTAFF

Funkelndes, intensives Rubin-Violett. Eröffnet mit betont würzigen Noten, nach dunkler Brotkruste, dann Tabak, viel Zwetschke. Am Gaumen erstaunlich frische und prägnante Frucht, nach Cassis und Granatapfel, kerniges, zupackendes Tannin, im Finale nach dunkler Olivenpaste.

The 2013 Poggio Bestiale is the most complete wine in the range. A host of super-ripe dark red cherry, plum, tobacco, lavender, rose petal and spice notes wrap around the palate. Ripe, sensual and succulent, the Poggio Bestiale has it all going on in 2013. Poggio Bestiale, Magliano's Merlot/Cabernet Sauvignon/Cabernet Franc/Petit Verdot is reliably compelling and unique, as it is once again this year.

WINE ADVOCATE - ROBERT PARKER

The 2013 Maremma Toscana Poggio Bestiale is an impressive and memorable effort. The wine's robust building blocks include 35% Merlot, 30% Cabernet Sauvignon, 30% Cabernet Franc and 5% Petit Verdot. The blend is aged in barriques for one year, thus adding density and structure to the finish. Black fruit flavors of prune and plum are enhanced by spicy tones of black pepper, grilled herb and clove. There is a savory or wild element that recalls the warmth and hillsides of Maremma in southern Tuscany.
